Tracey Names Morton.

General R. F. Tracey, in an extended speech, placed in nomination ex-Vice-President Morton. He closed by saying:

"Fellow delegates of the convention: A grave responsibility rests upon the Republican party of New York. It is our duty to plece in nomination today a man who is not only able to carry the state, but one who will win a victory of such magnificent proportions as to satisfy the people of the mation and the people of the commercial world. Republicans are coming back to stay. That man is the Hon, Levi Parrons Morton."

There was a storm of appliance as General Tracy anished, and several members were on their feet asking for recognition to second the nomination and ask for a vote by acclaimation, but Coloned Raxier threaded his way up the aisle and took the platform. For a law to Guard the Sanctity of the Nominative Franchise.

To the Honorable Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Ulah, Greeting: We, your pelitioners, respectfully represent that there is no law, within our knowledge, that defines either how, when, or where to commence political representation, and consequently, we as individuals, and the people as communities, find ourselves at each recurring election unprepared and smable to make necessary governmental nominations on the basis of individual representation.

Therefore, to make it possible for all citizens to meet with their peers at a fixed time and place, to select governing deputies by a majority vote of all citizens they are to represent, we respectfully request your honorable body to establish by law regular annual nominating conventions in each school district in the territory, (where minority as well as majority representation will operate naturally) for the election of school officers; also for the appointment of primary deputies to annual precinct conventions for the election of precinct officers; also for the appointment of primary deputies to county conventions, and so on, repeating the process through a succession of annual fixed conventions, until the whole territory is completely organized on the basic principle of individual and personally selected representation (furnishing revenue for governmental expenses by a tax on clear yearly incomes); so that every citizen can independently take hold of the helm of government and through general counsel and well directed effort retrieve the effects of former neglect, and proceed to organize a protective government for the safety and support of the whole population. And thus a policy will be inaugurated to save the liberty of the citizen and the constitution from otherwise certain the constit

It happened at one of the inland lake exchange. A young man from Chicago was stopping there with his wife, and the wife had wandered down to the shore of the lake to enjoy the evening breeze. A short pler jutting out int the lake looked inviting, and she went out on it, unmindful of several urchins at the shore end of the pier. He has had the cover of the pamphlet printed in fac simile of that blank pamphlet, first brought to the attention of Congress during the silver debate in the Senate at the extra session by a would be wit, with its flaring title "What Congress Has Done." Mr. Hall shows what it really has done, and as his summary discloses, it has been, all things considered, a creditable session to the Democratic party. It has made all money equally taxable; restored confidence in our currency and finances; giving to the people the opportunity of living better and cheaper; shattered the protective trusts of McKinleyism; placed the burden of taxation upon the rich man's surplus as well as upon every man's needs; restored the freedom of election; placed the transactions of the government and its methods of accounting upon a business basis; greatly reduced the expenditures of the government and its methods of accounting upon a business basis; greatly reduced the expenditures of the government and its methods of accounting upon a business basis; greatly reduced the expenditures of the government and the number of officeholders, and has maintained an unrelenting fight against trusts and monopolles which protection created. At the close of the summary, Mr. Hall prints the quotation: "It has fousit the good fight it has finished the course, it has kept the faith."

"In Old Kentucky" Greeted By Another Large Audience.

There was just as big a house at the theatre last night as there was the night before. The drawing powers of "In Old Kentucky" were abundantly demonstrated, and no doubt they will again be felt tonight with a generous attendance. This piece, with its stir-ring incidents, its genuine picanninies and splendid scenery and appointments.
